Things to do in San Francisco - Part 25 - Haight-Ashbury Street Fair

You are just in time if you want to visit the summer street fair in the Haight-Ashbury which started on June 10th! If you miss it, then just walk down Haight Street and get the flavor of the area which became famous in the sixties!

Yahoo Travel says this about the Haight-Ashbury Street Fair:

It is not the Summer of Love, but it is one of the most colorful summer street fairs The City has to offer. There is lots to see and do, but the most interesting sight of all may be the Deadheads, punks, grunge-meisters, and yuppies all mingling to the sounds of music and the aroma of the organic and not-so organic treats offered up by the street merchants. The fair, which takes place in June, is always crowded, so public transportation is definitely the way to get there. The event is free; some vendors may take credit cards.
