Things to do in San Francisco - Part 44 - Moscone Center

Yahoo Travel says this about the Moscone Center:

Nearly 17 million visitors arrive in San Francisco each year, and a large number of them come to town for business at the Moscone Center, one of the premier convention facilities in the United States. With more than two million square feet of buildings and 700,000 square feet of meeting area, housed on some 20 acres, the Moscone Center is a magnet for every kind of conference, convention and other meeting activity for groups, organizations, industries and companies from around the globe. In any given year Moscone Center plays host to the likes of LinuxWorld, CTIA, Oracle, and MacWorld, and like the city of San Francisco itself, Moscone is always on the cutting edge, whether in facilities, services or the clientele it attracts.
